PREFACE

The Seventh Biennial Symposium of the American Academy of Veterinary Pharmacology and Therapeutics (AAVPT), held June 12 - 16, 1990 at Raleigh, North Carolina, focused on educational perspectives in preparation for the 21st Century. Societal interactions with veterinary pharmacology were addressed; speakers considered current societal attitudes and trends which impact veterinary pharmacology and suggested means by which the AAVPT could exert a positive influence. The need for and the role of veterinary pharmacologists in the pharmaceutical industry, the Food and Drug Administration, and in academia were discussed. Issues of current concern, including extralabel drug use, generic drugs, drug availability, and flexible labeling were examined from the perspectives of U.S. and European regulatory officials, industry, and academia. Sessions on pharmacology teaching considered an examination of what we currently are teaching our veterinary students and how we may be able to meet our responsibilities in the future, a workshop discussing and demonstrating information technologies, and a poster session featuring creative ideas in teaching. Abstracts of the posters presented as well as abstracts of graduate student research presentations are included in these proceedings.

A discussion was held regarding the AAVPT proposal to establish the American College of Veterinary Clinical Pharmacology (ACVCP). The proposal was considered and approved at the AVMA meeting in July 1990 and the ACVCP became a reality.

Total registration for the meeting was 116, including 29 members of the Society of Veterinary Hospital Pharmacists.
